

Me on the Edinburgh Brewing Podcast

Today saw the release of a podcast where Morag from the Edinburgh Brewing Podcast interviewed me about all things beery. It's the first time I've been interviewed for a podcast so I was quite nervous (which comes across a little I think), but it was fantastic fun and of course, always nice to have an excuse to talk about beer and brewing endlessly.

I chat about how I got into brewing, entering competitions and about what's it's like to have the support of a fantastic brewing community like Scottish Craft Brewers.

Listen to the podcast

I was worried I'd be boring but I must have done ok as she's already asked if I'll do another one on the history of women and brewing so watch out for that.